

STORY BOARDS

The storyboards taught me that I would need an alert system to notify that they are wanted to be a companion. I also learned that it would be good to show the user who is watching over them, so they know how many people, if any, are watching over them. Another thing that I learned is that I might have to consider a way to get people near the user as a companion too, so that they can take action if something does happen to them, because a person far away wouldn't be able to do anything.

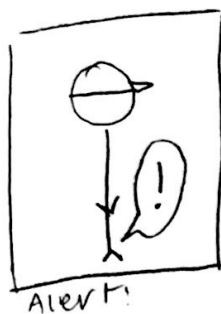

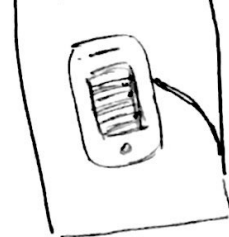

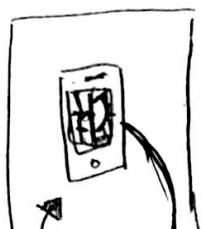

showing her current location

select who you want to ask to watch over you

Watch over Jane?

Jane's current location

watching over Jane

2 people are watching over her

Made it home safely